Community and Public Service Theme Highlighted at Convocation

Dr. Allan Bailey addresses students, faculty, and staff at Convocation 1994.

Change, competition, customers, careers, and community. Those are the five "C"s that will impact the lives of Bryant students once they leave the College and begin work in their fields.

That was the message delivered at Convocation by Dr. Allan Bailey, dean of the School of Business at San Diego State University, and immediate past president of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). Bryant's undergraduate and graduate business programs are fully accredited by AACSB, a distinction granted to less than 20 percent of such programs across the country.

Dr. Bailey cited the commitment of a young alum from his university who made a difference in the lives of homeless children by founding a non-traditional school to provide equivalency diplomas. "Each of you has the same opportunity" to make a difference in the community, he said.

Dr. Bailey's address inaugurated the theme of "Community and Public Service" that will be highlighted through a series of forums throughout the year, culminating with the selection of the 1995 Commencement speaker and honorary degree recipients.

Dr. Mary Lyons, professor of English was presented the Distinguished Faculty Award for her 24 years of service to the College, colleagues on the faculty, and her students.

President William E. Trueheart welcomed 750 freshmen, transfer, and graduate students to the Bryant Community. President Trueheart noted that these new scholars come from 20 states and 43 countries. He urged these students to make a commitment to community and public service "a central part of your learning and living experience at Bryant."

Dr. Michael B. Patterson, vice president for academic affairs and dean of faculty, recognized students' academic achievements and introduced the five new faculty members who joined Bryant this semester.

Adjunct Professor of Music Richard Cumming and soloist Christine Gagne '96 performed the debut of Bryant's new alma mater, "Throughout Our Lives," which Professor Cumming composed.

BY THE WAY...

Evelyn Dvorak, director of foundation relations, tells us that her daughter, Alison, received an academic achievement award for her top score in German III at Northfield (MA) Mount Hermon School. Alison was the only freshman in the junior-senior level German class. The award was presented at the school's prize assembly in May. Congratulations to Alison!

David Simpson was a winner at a meet held in May at the New England Dragway in Epping, NH. Mr. Simpson drove his Camaro to a quarter-mile run of 11.87 seconds and 103 mph to beat Roger Prince of Hudson, NH, in the Pro Class final. Mr. Simpson's victory was part of New England Dragway's Super Chevy Program.

A belated congratulations to Deborah Pasquarella of student activities and her husband, Michael, on the birth of their son, Michael Jacob. He was born on March 1 and weighed 9 lbs. 14 oz.

Congratulations to Frank Pavao of the admission office on the marriage of his daughter Karen '83 to Anthony Travelyn on May 21.

In July, Avis Hallam's son, David, took first place in the Hampton Beach (NH) Duathlon. David competed in the 30 to 39-year-old category against 150 entrants in the running and cycling ties trials. He competes on a year-round basis throughout New England.

Paula Hogan of purchasing would like to thank the Bryant Community for the cards, flowers, and condolences sent on the death of her father.

Public Safety Director George Coronado has informed us that Officer Fausto Garcia has received numerous awards for heroism for his part in helping save the life of a 50-year-old truck driver whose gasoline tanker crashed and caught on fire on Rt. 95 in Providence on March 27. Among them was the Robert Bunker Award for Heroism given by the Northeast College and University Security Association (NECUSA) in Dayton, OH, and the International Association of College Law Enforcement Administrators (IACLEA) Award for Valor given in Seattle, WA. Officer Garcia and Mr. Coronado were present at both award presentations, attended by several hundred individuals from around the U.S. and Canada. Congratulations Officer Garcia!

In Memoriam - Trustee Morton Smith

Trustee Morton Smith

Morton Smith, a member of the Bryant Board of Trustees since August 1986, died on June 2 at the age of 79. Trustee Smith was president and chief executive officer of Morton Smith, Inc. and Medway Marine Corp. from 1950 to 1990.

"His presence was always very real and felt by everyone at our trustee board meetings," says Trustee Chairman Greg Parkos. "Mort had that unique talent to speak his special few words of wisdom on the subject being discussed, and that statement would remain on the minds of the several dozen participants as the essence of our deliberations on the matter."

Trustee Smith served on several of the board's committees, including the executive committee; the audit committee; the development, alumni, and external affairs committee; the investment committee; and the Honorary Degree Committee, for which he served as chair for the 1987 and 1988 academic years.

"Morton Smith was one of a kind," says the Honorable Bruce M. Selya, Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, former chair of the board of trustees, and active honorary trustee. "He kept his entrepreneurial skill and brilliant success in the business world; he was never too busy to help a friend, or to assist a worthy cause. In respect to Bryant College, he gave generously not only of his wealth but also of his time, energy, and wisdom. He served with great distinction as a member of the board of trustees and made significant contributions to the institution's progress. He also brought a certain warmth to the board room. Mort's counsel will be sorely missed. It is a tragedy to have had him among us, and will not likely see his equal again."

Trustee Smith was a trustee of Miriam Hospital, the RI Arts Festival, Newport, the RI Philharmonic Orchestra, the National Conference of Jewish Communities, the International Tennis Hall of Fame, and Butler Hospital. He served as president of the Providence Preservation Society and the Chopin Club of Rhode Island. He was a graduate of Brown University.

"Trustee Smith was a devoted and generous friend of Bryant College and a personal friend and advisor. He was deeply respected and loved by all who knew him. It was a pleasure to work with him. We will miss his wonderful sense of humor and excellent leadership," says President William Trueheart.

CIBED CORNER

Bryant New Home for Chamber Alliance

The five component members of Bryant's Center for International Business and Economic Development (CIBED) have an international reputation for aiding businesses. Trade connections made by the Export Assistance Center and World Trade Center Rhode Island, consulting by the Small Business Development Center and Institute for Family Enterprise, and professional development courses taught by the Center for Management Development have led CIBED to a preeminent position in the field of economic development in Rhode Island and New England.

Among those aware of CIBED's standing is the Greater Providence Chamber of Commerce, which announced last month that it is expanding its Rhode Island Industrial Competitive Alliance, developing close working relationships with CIBED's programs, and locating the Alliance at Bryant College. "Bryant is a perfect fit," said Janet White, vice president for economic development at the chamber.

When the chamber launched its Industrial Competitiveness Program last Fall, organizers said, rather modestly, that if they were successful with the eight pilot companies, they would up-the-ante and roll the program out statewide. That's exactly what happened.

The project "benchmarked" eight companies' management structures, fiscal strengths, market positions, and production techniques to practices at the best manufacturers, said Alliance Chair William Watkins Jr.

"The crucial next step in the process was actually designing customized transition plans to show each manufacturer exactly how to revamp its operations in order to stay on par with world-class competition in that particular industry," Mr. Watkins said.

Starting this November under the umbrella of the Alliance, 20 more companies will be selected, an executive director will be hired, new funding sources will be secured, and Bryant will serve as the Alliance's headquarters.

GET TO KNOW . . . PROJECT VENTURE by Mich

Project Venture is a pre-college program designed to encourage multi-cultural students to prepare for college and their future professions. Bryant College, the business community, and several Rhode Island school systems helped create Project Venture to encourage minority middle school students to continue their high school education and pursue higher education at the collegiate level. The students chosen for the program have been deemed by their teachers, guidance counselors, and principals as potential college-bound students. The purpose is to reach students before they enter high school and interest them into going to college. Project Venture works with them throughout their high school years by providing SAT preparation courses, career education seminars, financial aid information, and facilitation of the college application process. This ensures that the student will make informed, mature, decisions regarding their future education.

Project Venture offers many ways in which to help students. Programs include Spring Workshops, Road to College Workshops in all middle schools, Summer Experience, and an academic year follow-up. By far the most popular of all the programs is the Summer Experience. Here participants spend four weeks in July living the college life. They stay in residence halls donated to the program by Bryant College. They attend enrichment courses in math, English, science, and study skills. The students also attend career exploration seminars, go on field trips, listen to guest speakers, gain insight from mentors, and experience being away from home and meeting new people. During the Summer Experience program they get to be on their own, away from their parents and friends for the first time. They are actual college students for one month, and experience many of the same worries and anxieties that most new college students experience. They are supported by five resident assistants and five professors.

Another important part of the Project Venture program is the Mentoring Program, which pairs incoming students with senior students. The mentors are Bryant College students who have completed the Project Venture program and establish a weekly relationship with the students. They provide positive role models for the students. They give advice and support when necessary. The mentor and his or her mentee meet regularly and share information with each other. Many times a student finds it easier to talk to someone of their own age than speaking with a professor.

The Mentoring Program is a worthwhile experience for both parties. The mentee gets a positive role model, while mentors get the satisfaction of helping another's life. As mentor Jennifer Crum says, "It's a great experience for both of us."

If you have any questions about Project Venture, contact the Project Venture office located in Residence Hall 6 at 232-634-1234.

KPMG Peat Marwick Generously Contributes

Professor Jack Rubens

Professor Jack

Two faculty members, who also happen to be friends, have won awards for excellence in teaching. Professor Jack Rubens won the award for excellence in teaching liberal arts. The award is given by the teaching business.

Less than two months after receiving the award, Professor Rubens died of a heart attack in Maine. He had been with Bryant College for many years. News of his death shocked and saddened the college community.

Sue Wandyes, secretary to the vice president, relates what receiving the award meant to Professor Rubens. She relates what receiving the award meant to him and the pride he took in his accomplishments of his life and the pride he took in his colleagues.

Professor Rubens leaves behind a large group of admirers. Students who have taken his classes are proud to have him in them. In their selection of Professor Rubens as outstanding business professor, they noted his "maintaining a light and casual learning atmosphere," had "an excellent deep insight of the material he presented." Professor Levin adds, "Jack was a great teacher, but also made his classes fun to attend."

Colleagues will remember Professor Rubens' dedication to his work, his expertise on banking and real estate, one side of his office was jammed with posters and hats. Professor Rubens eschewed a dress code — he always wore a sweater.

Bryant has lost a great teacher, an esteemed colleague, and a friend. The fields of banking and real estate. But those who remain behind are left with a void. Somehow, we're sure Professor Rubens would approve.

Students, faculty, and staff are invited to attend a memorial service for Professor Jack Rubens at the Bryant Center.

Bryant Loses a Star

Bryant has lost an great athlete who will be remembered not so much for the points he scored for his team, but for the impact he had on those who were lucky enough to get to know him. Omar Shareef, a junior forward on the Bryant men's basketball team, died on August 14 from injuries suffered in a car accident on Long Island.

"Omar was a beautiful person with a radiant personality," says Edward Reilly, head basketball coach. "He was as thoughtful and caring an individual as anyone with whom I've had the pleasure to work."

Coni Fichera, assistant athletic director, says, "Omar would frequently inspire other athletes looking for a boost. He went out of his way to brighten everyone's day," she says. "When people needed something to smile about, they'd go to 'O'. He will be missed by everyone."
